

COUNSEL FOR LEWIS AND THE GOVERNMENT GO INTO CONFERENCE WITH FEDERAL JUDGE GOLDSBOROUGH APPARENTLY OVER SENTENCE METED OUT TO LEWIS

Lewis Sits Silently in Courtroom for 10 Minutes, Then Becoming Restless, Walks Into Vacant Jury Room Puffing Vigorously at Cigar — Climax Comes As Government Issues Emergency Orders to Prepare Economy for Coal Famine.

By International News Service
WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Counsel for John L. Lewis and the Government went into conference with Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough today, apparently over Lewis sentence.
The attorneys entered Goldsborough's chambers at 10:02 a. m., E. T.
Lewis, left behind in the courtroom, sat silently for 10 minutes, then showing restlessness, walked to a vacant jury room and lit a cigar, at which he puffed vigorously.
It was believed at first that Lewis had gone into chambers with the counsel but court attaches later explained the United Mine Workers leader had not done so.
The attorneys emerged from Judge Goldsborough's chambers at 10:44 a. m., EST, and entered the courtroom.
A few minutes later Lewis and his counsel entered the office of Assistant Attorney General John F. Sweeney, who is handling the defense case for the Government.

By Phillips J. Peck
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(INS)—John L. Lewis faces a jail sentence or fine today for contempt of court in failing to halt the 14-day-old walkout of his 400,000 soft coal miners.
The 66-year-old union leader appears before Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough at 10 a. m. (EST) to learn whether a jail term or heavy fine will be imposed for his violation of an order restraining the mine shutdown.
The court will act after hearing the views of Government and defense attorneys on the punishment to be administered.
Whatever the sentence, Lewis is expected to appeal to the higher courts his contention that Judge Goldsborough's restraining order was illegal and did not have to be obeyed.

Service will be held at eight o'clock this evening at the Molden funeral chapel, 133 Otter street, Bristol, with further service and interment at Scranton on Friday.

MORRISVILLE LAD IS GOING TO ANTARCTIC

Edgar G. Higgins Sails From Norfolk With The Byrd Expedition, Monday

IS IN HIS 18TH YEAR
MORRISVILLE, Dec. 4.—A 17-year-old Morrisville boy is among those who sailed with Admiral Richard E. Byrd for the Antarctic. The one bound for great adventure is Edgar G. Higgins, a seaman who less than six months ago was attending classes at Morrisville high school.
The young man, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Higgins, Moreau street, is a member of the Navy's expedition to the Antarctic, known as "Operation High Jump" and considered the greatest scientific undertaking of history. He entered navy training July 4 and recently was assigned aboard the flagship of the expedition, the U. S. S. "Mount Olympus." A dozen vessels and 4,000 men are assigned to the operation.
The Mount Olympus, in a flotilla including a destroyer, seaplane tender and icebreaker, sailed Monday from Norfolk for a rendezvous with other vessels going to sea from San Diego and San Pedro, Cal. Other ships, including the 27,000-ton aircraft carrier "Philippine Sea," and another icebreaker will sail in January. Admiral Byrd, who saw the Norfolk contingent off, will join the group aboard the "Philippine Sea" or the icebreaker. The Norfolk task force is commanded by Rear Admiral Richard H. Cruzen.
At sea with the "Mount Olympus," Seaman Higgins already had had his first taste of weather. The cold wave and high winds of Monday and yesterday whipped up a heavy sea off Cape Hatteras and as the four ships plunged from one trough to the next the crews were busy battenning down gear. Dozens of dishes in galleys, only things to eat from and of minor importance, were reported to have slid from shelves and smashed.
Higgins will be 18 years old December 13th, but his parents say he has no superstitions.
The youthful sailor was graduated with the class of 1946 at Morrisville high and received his "boot" training at Bainbridge, Md., with advanced amphibious work at Little Creek, Va.
Navy Day was as big event for Higgins' mother as for him. She visited the "Mount Olympus" at the Brooklyn Navy Yard and toured her boy's ship from stern to stern.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR CONSOLIDATED SCHOOLS

Yardley Junior Civic Club Hears Arguments Favoring Such A Project

SOME ARE OPPOSED
YARDLEY, Dec. 4.—Proposal of a consolidated school for Falls Township, Lower Makefield Township and Yardley was made again at a recent meeting of the Yardley Junior Civic Club.
Vincent Casey, president of the Yardley school board and also president of the consolidated board, explained advantages of consolidation and the basis of sharing the cost of such a school among the three communities. A discussion period followed Casey's talk.
The Yardley Lions Club were guests at the meeting. Mrs. Hermann D. Zettler was in charge of arrangements assisted by Miss Genevieve Barbour, Mrs. Paul Bowen, Mrs. Howard J. Erb, Jr., Miss Annette Gallagher, Mrs. Robert Hassell and Miss Alice Stackhouse.
Redecoration of the meeting room is under direction of Mrs. Edward Westberg.

GUFFEY AND PEACE

U. S. Senator Joseph F. Guffey, who will retire next January to make room for Senator-elect Edward Martin, has just won one unusual distinction.

He has delivered a "farewell address" considerably more interesting than anything said in his campaign. Usually the post-election statements of defeated candidates aren't worth reading. They are much like the remarks of defeated prizefighters. They fall into three classes: "We wuz robbed;" "I'll beat him next time;" or, simply, "Hello, Mom!"
Few can bring themselves to say publicly, or even admit to themselves, the counterpart of the famous remark of Vinegar Joe Stillwell: "I claim we took a hell of a licking."

The point which makes the comments of Senator Guffey interesting is not that he dodged the familiar bromides, however, but that he discussed frankly issues which he and his associates on the Pennsylvania Democratic ticket had dodged in the campaign.

Throughout the pre-election speeches, all New Dealers said on all occasions: "Communism is not an issue."

Now that he has been defeated, Senator Guffey concedes that it is an issue. Moreover, he brings it up as a key factor in the matter which he says is his "gravest immediate concern," that of world peace.

Thereupon he states his own views, as follows:

"Should the anti-Communist theme of the recent Republican campaign become crystallized into a definite isolationist policy of the party controlling Congress, it can exert a seriously adverse influence on world affairs.

"If we want lasting peace, we can neither play Britain off against Russia, nor 'gang up' with Britain against Russia. Secretary Byrnes, in my opinion, has recognized that fact and has guided our diplomacy

12-ROOM DOLL HOUSE COMPLETELY EQUIPPED

Miss Annie Valentine, 322 Radcliffe Street, Has Unique Display

SEABOARD CORP. TO MOVE BUSINESS HERE

New Building To Be Built Near Croydon Will House Entire Personnel

VISITORS WELCOME

A Christmas season invitation to visit a 12-room doll house has been extended to the public by a Bristol resident who has completely and attractively furnished such.

The house, between 60 and 70 years old, was purchased two years ago by Miss Annie Valentine, 322 Radcliffe street, and she has spent the past week getting everything in the miniature suite in readiness for callers.

The house, three stories high, is of frame construction, with one entire side open to reveal the 12 rooms and the stair-case which goes from the bottom to the top floor.

A glimpse inside reveals rugs and carpets, linoleum on the kitchen floor, wallpaper of various choices, pictures, net curtains, a pair of dogs, a cat fashioned of pussy-willows, lamps, all types of furniture—even to complete bathroom outfit.

The main entrance to the house is by means of a door leading in from the front "stoop," close by a bay-window. Window boxes with flowers appear on the upper floor. From the reception hall double doors, complete with stained glass, lead to the other rooms on the main floor. In the front parlor a fireplace has a screen and wood basket. There is a grand piano, other furniture, urns, lamps and statuary. From the Dutch hall the open stairway starts its ascent, close by a grandfather clock. The dining-room boasts of modern furniture, with china and cutlery on the table. A china closet, baby high chair, and fireplace are included. The kitchen is equipped with sink and cupboards; while in the shed are to be seen stationary tubs, old-fashioned tub, ironing board, brushes, mops, etc.

The second floor boasts of another living room, with desk, book case, upholstered furniture, radio, and carved wood fireplace mantel. There are two bedrooms on this floor, one being finished in pink and one in yellow; while the bathroom has in addition to its regular equipment, a clothes hamper and towel rack.

Three bedrooms and a nursery make up the third floor. In the nursery are a cradle, crib and training chair.

The State Police Say - - -

Do you know that December, commonly regarded as the most joyful month of the year, is one of the deadliest in the calendar. According to records, December commonly has more traffic deaths than any other month in the year. Last year, for example, it topped the list with 3,339 deaths. This year we sincerely hope there will be far fewer deaths—and there may be if each of you remembers that YOUR PRESENCE is the gift of a lifetime to your family.

Show Slides, "Pictures People Like To See"

At the Bristol Camera Club meeting on Monday slides were shown, they being titled "Pictures People Like to See."

The slides included studies of babies, people, scenery, sports, architecture, etc.

A membership drive is now on. Regular Monday evening meetings are held at the home, 27 Lincoln avenue. Trips to historic and scenic places, contests, etc., are planned for the near future.

Headley Manor Company Answers Two Alarms

EDGELY, Dec. 4.—Headley Manor Fire Co. answered two alarms for fire yesterday.

The one was for a chimney fire at the farm house recently purchased by Leo Hibbs, at Emille. The house is being remodeled.

The second call, during the afternoon, was for a grass fire near the canal locks, here.

TOWER CHIMES TO BE PLACED AT ST. JAMES'

Will Honor The 73 From That Church Who Served During World War II

DELIVERY DATE SOON

Tubular tower chimes are expected to be delivered soon for installation in St. James' Episcopal Church, the chimes being installed in honor of the 73 women and men whose names appear on the honor roll of the church, and in memory of one of the group who lost his life while in the service. The 73 served in the armed forces during World War II.

The date for dedication ceremony will be dependent upon the time of delivery, announces the rector, the Rev. George E. Boswell.

The tower chime project was sponsored by St. James' Circle, with money raised by general subscription.

With amplification from the tower of St. James', it is planned to have a 15-minute chime program prior to each Sunday morning service. The chimes will be connected with the pipe organ in the main auditorium of the church.

Deceased Middletown Twp. Resident Left Personal Estate of $1300

MADE BEQUESTS

Son and Daughter Named Executors of The Estate

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 4.—The housekeeper employed by the late Henry G. Miller, retired Reading Railroad conductor, has been bequeathed $1000 through the will of Mr. Miller. The recipient of the bequest is Mrs. Idella Bachman. Mr. Miller died on October 23rd.

Mrs. Bachman, who was ill in a Philadelphia hospital when her employer was stricken at his home on West Oakland avenue, was remunerated for her kindness and length of service.

The testator, who left a personal estate of $350 and real estate valued at $7500, bequeathed two grandchildren, Betty and Clarence H. Miller, each $100. A sister, Elizabeth Miller, was given $500.

Two sons, Clarence A. Miller, Glenside, who was named the executor, and Nelson H. Miller, will share the residue. The one son, Clarence A. Miller, was bequeathed a family heirloom, a holiday grandfather clock. The will was executed October 16, 1945.

Clarence D. Oakley, Middletown township, who left a personal estate of $1300 and real estate in Middletown township, bequeathed $500 to Grace M. McGee. Four children, Donald K. Oakley, Marjorie O. Claassen, Marion O. Rodgers and Doris O. Taylor, are the heirs. The testator, who died November 1, executed his will October 14. Two children, Donald K. Oakley, Wilmetta, Ill., and Marjorie O. Claassen, Langhorne, were named executors. The value of the real estate was not indicated.

John Andrew Scheffler, Sr., Warrington, who left a personal estate of $1000 and real estate valued at $6300, including a half interest in a 152-acre farm in Chester county, named eight beneficiaries in his will, four of whom he gave $1 each.

Four beneficiaries, Andrew P. Paul J. and Francis R. Scheffler and Agnes H. Hickey each receive $1. With the stipulation that he remain on the homestead, Michael R. Scheffler was given $500; John A. Scheffler, Jr., and Anna Julia Nichols will each inherit $500.

The residue, including a 193-acre farm in Warrington township, will be inherited by August R. Scheffler. The will was written October 20, 1947, and the decedent died April 7, August R. Scheffler, Nottingham, RD, was named the executor.

BUILDING COSTS

Richard J. Gray, president of the AFL's building and construction trades department, has cheerfully predicted that construction costs are headed for a drop "as soon as the manufacturers establish an even and adequate flow of materials." There is a solid basis for this optimism. Building costs, which have been skyrocketing for years, can come down—in fact they must if new homes are to be within the reach of most people.

It would be idle to contend that construction costs can be rolled back all the way to where they were before the war. At the present level of wages and material prices, costs are certain to continue to be higher than they were six years ago.

But some of the high cost of building at the present time is attributable to other causes. One reason why construction is expensive is that shortages of key materials disrupt schedules and result in a lot of waste time. Another is that many workers are less efficient and productive than before the war.

There is a reasonable chance that both of these conditions, which add materially to construction costs, will be cured within the next year or two. Moreover, there are many men in the building industry today who are looking for more efficient and less costly methods of providing Americans new homes. The potentialities of mass production in the industry have barely been tapped.

For this and other reasons it seems likely that the tide which has carried construction costs to new peaks will turn before long. How long will be required for this to be accomplished depends largely on whether uninterrupted production is maintained. Strikes and shutdowns can only cripple the lagging housing program and set off still further the day when hewlenges will be both plentiful and cheap.

SUBSIDY SAVINGS

In ending most price controls, Reconversion Director Steelman points out, the government has also wiped out the greater part of the subsidy program. As a result, more than three-fourths of the sum set aside for that purpose will not be spent. The saving is calculated at nearly $790,000,000.

That is a great deal of money even though the Federal Treasury now deals in billions rather than millions. It might represent the difference between a surplus and a deficit during the current fiscal year. In any case, it must be entered on the credit side of the ledger in any attempt to balance the account for decontrol.

Mr. Steelman has reminded the public again that prices on many commodities and goods while price ceilings were maintained did not reflect their cost of production. Consumers were actually paying less than their real value and the government was making up the difference. As the government had to borrow to meet expenses, and government deficits have as inflationary an effect as do high tax rates.

GUFFEY AND PEACE

accordingly, but his task will become an impossible one if Republican leadership continues to widen the difference which he is attempting to bridge."

This is too accurate and adroit a summary of the political position of the PAC in this nation, and of the Labor Party extremists in England, who are their British equivalents, for it to have been a chance personal comment by the Senator.

It is studied, neatly phrased, important. It is unquestionably an attempt to lay down what the Communists call a "party line," which means an official party position taken to shield true objectives, and carefully worded to appeal to public misinformation, misconceptions and prejudices.

Many things could be said in reply. Senator Ball, Minnesota Republican, was quick to point out that Senator Guffey is blandly trying to shove the onus of his own political faction's misdeeds over to the Republican party.

Recalling that the real attack on the Byrnes policy came, not from Republicans, but from Democrat Secretary Wallace, who was fired by President Truman as a result of making it, Senator Ball observes tartly that "The Wallace-Pepper-Guffey-PAC Democrats have done more to undermine the Byrnes-Vandenberg-Connally approach to bi-partisan foreign policy than any Republican."

But the matter goes much deeper. For all of Senator Guffey's intimations that the present Byrnes policy is that of appeasement, that he is trying to "bridge" the "difference" between Russia and the United States, this is a view precisely contrary to the facts.

The recent Byrnes policy has been "tough." The word has been used constantly. Not until the policy became tough did it win any mass approval from the American people. The extent to which it became tough, in contrast with earlier efforts to buy Russia's good will, was well displayed in the striking and important matter of the future of Germany.

Angered and dismayed by the constant encroachment of Russia upon her neighbors in Europe and Asia, and her persistent use of her veto power to prevent either criticism or restraint of these aggressive acts, Byrnes threatened to set up a strong post-war Germany as a buffer against Russia.

That was the threat which brought Wallace and his pro-Russian sympathies into the open. When Senator Guffey urges in one breath continued appeasement of Russia, and in the next pretends to support any such program as that outlined by Byrnes, he is simply talking through his hat. The two approaches are incompatible. The Guffey statement not merely ignores but conceals the reason which has recently made so many people in England and America fear that the U. S. and Russia cannot "live together in peace."

This reason lies in the field of facts, not of propaganda or friendship.

It consists of the persistent refusal of the Russians to keep their armies and their ideology behind any boundary yet found.

One has to be green indeed not to see that pro-Russian agents, thousands of them upon the American public payroll, have been working under orders from Moscow, not merely to win sympathy for the Russian system of government, but to undermine our own.

For us to agree to let the Russians run their own affairs is one thing; but when they so obviously decide that it's their business to run our affairs, that is something else.

As for physical boundaries, the year and a half since the end of the war—a war purportedly fought on the Atlantic Charter basis of no aggrandizement of one nation at the expense of another—has seen Russia's pre-war Western border move in three steps 700 miles across Europe; first to the mid-Poland Curzon line, then to the Western Polish frontier, and now to the middle of Germany.

This aggressive Western march has been made under the shelter of the "appeasement" attitude of the political school to which Senator Guffey belongs. Each concession of a new frontier was hailed at the time as a master-stroke by which Russia would be placated and contented.

Now she has pushed three-fourths of the way to the English Channel—and still is restless.

What Senator Guffey overlooks in his sentimental discussion of this problem is that at some stage in the game, the spirit of self-preservation simply must come to dominate our foreign policy.

Questions of wages, hours and working conditions are better handled by management and men at the local level by the democratic process of free collective bargaining in a competitive market economy. Note that I said "at the local level."

But our whole approach in recent years has been away from democracy, toward the autocracy of huge nation-wide labor monopolies. Instead of draping some additional political appointees with ermine robes to wrestle with the autocrats of labor, we should cut down these autocrats to manageable size. Today they stride across the land on giant stilts given them by the same government which it is now proposing would appoint new judges of the length of their strides!

posed would appoint new judges of the length of their strides!

To quote Mr. Lewis' favorite author:

"Why, man, he doth bestride this narrow world 'Like a Colossus; and we petty men 'Walk under his huge legs, and peep about 'To find ourselves dishonourable graves.'"

It is hinted that the peeping about business is now going on—as usual.

The answer is simple. Take away the stilts from those who abuse the powers, which government itself confers.

When in the old days the Standard Oil nation-wide monopoly got too big for petty men to cope with, the Sherman Anti-Trust Act took away its stilts. And we now have several score of petroleum companies instead of one giant.

When the public utility holding company empire grew too vast through the powers to incorporate, combine and control, which the law itself gave them, the law took the powers away.

Our approach should not be the road to fascism and judicial decrees enforced by bayonets. We should return to the democratic principle that opposes the concentration of power over the lives of men, whether in industry, or finance, or labor, or government itself. Total government against the total power of a nation-wide labor monopoly is not the answer.

This is no time to evade the issue with governmental gadgets and contraptions that look good on paper, but fall in the clutch.

Instead of building up the power of government over huge labor unions, we should build down the power of huge labor unions over government.

Would you tolerate all coal mines being organized into a single gigantic trust where the owners could freeze the American people?

No! Then why should we tolerate all coal miners being herded into a single union, so strong that only the threat of army rule and prison sentence can even make the pretense of coping with it.

Now is the time for the American people to speak.

If Your Eyes Are Neglected Make-Up Won't Help a Bit

Courtesy Yardley

To rest the eyes, apply a toning lotion to cotton pads and relax for fifteen minutes.

By HELEN FOLLETT

GLANCE at your eyes in the mirror. If you feel all fagged out, limp as a rag, chances are your eyes won't have a bit of star-shine in them. That won't do. The eyes are the predominating feature. If they are bright and sparkling, facial defects will not be noticed.

Take good care of them. Bathe them twice a day with warm water, then with cold. Do not abuse them by reading or sewing in a dim light. They are wonderfully made, delicately designed mechanisms; it is a crime against health and beauty to neglect them. Make-up won't help a bit if eye strain is present.

Don't forget that expression gives them luster and loveliness. The woman who faces life splendidly and gloriously, whose wits are quick and keen, who is alive to everything that goes on around her, is bound to have interesting, glamorous eyes, no matter what the shape and color may be. She'll have lovely eyes when she is seventy years old because nothing will change them. She possesses beauty of high grade because it is created by character and personal charm.

Look at the people who pass you on the street. Regard their eyes. That is an interesting pastime and will teach you a lot.

Few eyes seem to have anything to say, but some light up a welcome to you. They bespeak friendliness, kindness and sympathy. They twinkle with good humor.

It's sensible to have due regard for the settings of these good looks jewels. Keep the surrounding flesh firm and free of lines, by nightly anointments with a nourishing cream. If the big party is on and your eyes look weary, apply pad and moisture with a fragrant toning lotion for fifteen or twenty minutes.

safe acts of other drivers and of pedestrians. He takes it easy.

"Pedestrians should remember that motorists have difficulty seeing them after dark and carry or wear something white. They should shun such hazardous acts as walking into the street between parked cars and crossing against traffic lights.

"Whether driving or walking, 'Take It Easy,' Mr. Haviland said.

If You Have News We Want To Know It

Residents of the communities suburban to Bristol are invited to present items of news to the various correspondents for publication in The Bristol Courier.

The said correspondents and their telephone numbers are here listed for convenience of the public:

THE TELEPHONE INDUSTRY (like other industries)

CAN'T MAKE BRICKS WITHOUT STRAW

WHEN YOU HAVE the organization and the experience and the know-how to do a job—when you have the wish and the will—you have pretty much of everything.

But "pretty much" is not enough.

You still need the straw to make your bricks . . . and it's the straw that we're lacking.

It's the straw that other industries are lacking, too . . . and other industries, as you know, are also having trouble making bricks.

Shortages of cotton yarn, for example, mean that our suppliers can't provide as much switchboard cable, frame wire, textile-insulated cable, cords, and drop wire as we need. Shortages of brass mill products cut our quota of central office switchboards, relays, and other apparatus. Shortages of lead and steel and plastics and rayon and lumber mean shortages of the thousand-and-one tiny and big things that combine to make telephone service possible.

But don't get us wrong.

We're making bricks—thousands of them. And every new shipment of straw enables us to make thousands more.

We're impatient, that's all. We don't like to keep anyone waiting for telephone service. We feel out of character when we do.

So we're making every brick count . . . and we're using old bricks where we have to . . . and we don't know a single telephone employee who thinks for a single moment that we have reached our last straw . . .

and here are some straws

This winter and next spring, we'll make huge additions to our Pennsylvania plant. We'll provide enough new facilities to take a big bite out of our waiting lists and to make telephone service available for thousands who are waiting.

In the meantime, we're making headway faster than we thought possible in the face of continuing material shortages, a supply situation that can't yet keep up with our demands, and a new demand for telephone service that continues to smash all records, shatter all predictions, and upset all calculations.

In short, we're making real progress toward our goal of providing new telephone service for anyone who wants it, and the world's finest telephone service for everyone who uses it, anywhere in the territory we serve.

Counsel for Lewis and Gov't Confer With Trial Judge

The jurist found Lewis and the United Mine Workers guilty of both civil and criminal contempt.

Under civil contempt proceedings, Judge Goldsborough has unlimited powers to levy fines or jail sentences. On criminal contempt, however, the court is limited to levying maximum punishment of a $1,000 fine and six months in jail.

The climax of the court fight came when the government issued a new series of emergency orders to prepare the economy for a coal famine. An Interstate Commerce Commission edict banned movement of all 11 freight after midnight Thursday except food and feed, medicines and fuels and a few other essential items.

The Post Office Department curtailed Christmas shipments by limiting weight of parcel post packages to not more than five pounds and not more than 18 inches in length, beginning at 12:01 a. m. Friday. All freight destined for export, except food and fuel, was embargoed by the Association of American Brokers at midnight last night. The Office of Defense Transportation at the same time increased a reduction in railroad passenger traffic from 25 to 50 per cent on oil-burning locomotives, effective midnight next Sunday.

"Take It Easy," Auto Club Warns All Motorists

"Take It Easy" this month walking and driving urged James T. Haviland, president of The Automobile Club of Philadelphia—AAA and chairman of the Safety Committee of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation, in reminding motorists and pedestrians today that December is the worst month of the year for traffic accidents.

"Traffic hazards are greater this month than any other because of longer hours of darkness, reduced visibility for both motorists and pedestrians on 'gray' days and slippery roads," the motor club official pointed out.

"Every motorist should make sure that his car's safety equipment, windshield wiper, defroster, brakes and chains are all in good condition. The careful driver checks weather before starting on a trip and while on the road he anticipates highway conditions and possible un-

Literature Contest Will Be of Interest on Friday

The literature committee, of which Mrs. Richard T. Myers is chairman, will have charge of the meeting of the Bristol Travel Club, Friday afternoon, at 2:30, in the club home.

The essays, which have been submitted by club members participating in the literature contest, will be judged at this meeting, and prizes will be awarded. The judges will be Mrs. Fred Watts, of Tullytown, literature chairman of Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Willard L. Croft, of Morrisville, and Mrs. Alan G. Benedict, of Langhorne.

Music will be provided by Miss Winifred V. Tracy with her symphony harp.

Tea will be served by the hostesses, Mrs. Lewis M. Worthington and Mrs. Ernest Lawrence, Jr.

By the Rev. Walter F. Humphrey
Pastor
Neshaminy Methodist Church

"Spirit of God, descend upon my heart

Wean it from earth; through all its pulses move.
Stoop to my weakness, mighty as Thou art.
And make me love Thee as I ought to love."

Dear Father, give us this day an insight into the meaning of life and a new source of courage. Help us to hear the call of duty and to respond. Give us to experience the strength that flows into the souls of men when they hold communion with Thee. Guide us as we face the perplexities of life. Give us light and strength that we may make the decisions which shall be helpful not alone to us, but also to our fellowmen, as well as to Thee. Amen.
